

News & Information from ATP
Volume 22, Issue 3

ITC/ATP RELEASE GUIDELINES FOR TECHNOLOGY-BASED ASSESSMENT
Guidelines available on the ATP website

Today, the International Test Commission (ITC) and the Association of Test Publishers (ATP) released a comprehensive set of Guidelines tailored specifically for technology-based assessment.

"Online learning and digital assessments have increased exponentially since 2020, and so it is with great pleasure that I can announce such a robust industry response to a trend that is likely going to continue on an upward trajectory and that will impact learners around the globe," said ATP CEO William G. Harris, Ph.D. commenting on the release of the guidelines that are now publicly available on the ATP website.

[\[Read More Here\]](#)

Registration and Sponsorship is Open for Innovations in Testing 2023 Early Bird Ends December 9th

Registration and Sponsorship is open for the 2023 Innovations Conference scheduled for March 12 - 15, in Dallas, TX at the Hilton Anatole. The theme of next year's conference will be: Better Together - Learning. Assessments. Outcomes. The conference will also feature a virtual event, that will follow two weeks later, titled Innovations+Connect.

2023 Conference Chair, Isabelle Gonthier of PSI, made special note that, "this conference will not be a hybrid, in which the in-person and virtual conference are run simultaneously, but instead will be an opportunity to continue the conversation." [\[Read more here\]](#)

ATP Submits Comments on Proposed California Consumer Privacy Act Regulations

In August ATP submitted comments to address the concerns of the testing industry related to the California Consumer Privacy Act Regulations as published in July. In responding to the call for comments, ATP outlined the complex roles and responsibilities experienced in the assessment/ learning industry, which may include a network of test developers, test owners, and test service providers, as a framework within which to address specific Proposed Regulations.

[\[Read More Here\]](#)

New Award Offered by ATP for Rising Leaders

Nominations are open for 2023 ATP Awards

ATP Board member and Awards Committee Chair, Amy Riker of Curriculum Associates, is urging all ATP members to look around and notice if there is a young rising leader, age 35 or under, in their organization that deserves a boost of recognition.

[\[Read More Here\]](#)

New World of Testing Digital Webinar Series Now Scheduling for 2023

ATP's popular New World of Testing (NWT) Digital webinars series is now accepting reservations and sponsors for 2023... All webinars are free of charge, open to the public, and recorded so that each presentation has a shelf-life on the ATP Hub.

[\[Read More Here\]](#)

Contact Info:

ATP

www.testpublishers.org

+1 (717) 755-9747

Lauren@testpublishers.org